New Party Wins at University

Fayetteville, April 20 — (AP)—The new University party took most of the office — and all the major day visitor in Texarkana.

Mrs. Homer Harrison and daughter Jan of Hope have been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Layman Dickinson.

Max Marguerite Rust of Little Rock was the Monday night guest of friends and spoke at the Annual dinner meeting of the Nevada County Tuberculosis Association.

ones — in the student election at the University of Arkansas yesterday.

Leon Brunk, 29, University party candidate from Siler Springs, won the presidency over football player or Dugan of East St. Louis, Ill., the Independent party candidate. The vote was 1,022 to 877.

Jim Wallace of Searcy was elected vice president, Martha Brooks of Springdale, secretary, and Billy Ray Jones of Gravette, treasurer. All were University party candidates.

Only the University and Independent groups entered candidates. The latter has been dominant in student politics here in recent years.

McMath to Seek Change in Law

Little Rock, April 20 — (AP)—Governor McMath believes the constitutional provision which allows the legislature to increase most taxes only by a three-fourths vote of both houses should be eliminated.

He's going to try to get Arkansas voters to agree with him. McMath said yesterday he'd campaign for removal of the prohibition in the 1952 general election. He said he believed the constitutional restriction is at least partly responsible for failure of the legislature to appropriate sufficient school funds at either the regular session or the special session, which ended Wednesday. His plan to sponsor a change does not mean he's planning to run for a third term as governor. McMath said in response to a question. The provision to which the governor objects is section two of constitutional amendment 10, approved in 1934. It prohibits the legislature from increasing any taxes then in effect (the sales tax wasn't voted until later and isn't affected) except by a three-fourths vote of both houses.

A companion section — three — provides that except "for educational purposes, highway purposes, to pay confederate pensions and the just debts of the state," the legislature may not appropriate more than $2,500,000 for any biennium except by three-fourths vote. McMath expressed his opposition to the amendment before flying to Jefferson City, Mo., where he addressed a meeting of the Missouri state chamber of commerce last night.

He planned to return to Rock today and then fly to Washington to appear tomorrow in support of a proposal to expand marine corps.

The National Geographic Society says it is estimated that four million persons have been killed by earthquakes since 600 B.C.

Stubborn Red

one of the main objectives of the Allies on the central front.

Allied authorities estimated some 600,000 Red troops were massed north of Chorwon for an expected all-out spring assault. Chorwon is 18 miles inside North Korea.

Allied infantrymen wielding flame throwers clared the way Thursday for the tanks. The driving bursts of chemical fire drove Red rearguards from trenches and bunkers on the last high ground before Chorwon. Then the tanks rumbled up to positions only three miles south of the city.

Flamethrowers also were used Thursday southeast of Chorwon to dislodge a small band of Reds who with Allied troops.

There was little ground activity elsewhere Friday morning along the 140-mile front.

The Reds continued their slow pullback. They sent a few patrols probing into Allied lines on the central front Thursday night, but all were driven back with losses to the Red feeler units.

Allied troops continued to follow up the Communist withdrawals.

United Nations warplanes roared to the attack Friday morning after a day of rain-caused idleness. The smashed anew at Red airfields, supply routes and other targets.

thought the joint chiefs had seen eye to eye with him, Senator Kerr (D-Okla.) said "I do not believe that statement." Appearing last night on a radio forum ("Reporters' Roundup," MBS), Kerr said the general should explain why if he believes that the joint chiefs recommended his removal.

Senators Long (D-La.) and Hunt (D-Wyo.) said the joint chiefs' position must be cleared up immediately. Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) indicated it would be investigated when a delayed inquiry begins into Far Eastern military and foreign policies.

But Long said the statement must not be left to lie unanswered until MacArthur comes back to Washington probably late in the month for an appearance before the group.

Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.), chairman of the house military appropriations subcommittee, challenged MacArthur's contention that the joint chiefs agree with the five-star general's views.

17-Gun Salute for Mac in New York

New York, April 20 — Gen. Douglas MacArthur came "home" last night to the thunderous roar of a 17-gun official salute and a public ovation which rang through city streets as he motored from airport to hotel.

The Batann, the general's silver Constellation plane, landed at Idlewild airport on Long Island at 9:10 p. m. (EST). Alighting from the plane were the general, his wife, their 13-year-old son, Arthur, and members of MacArthur's staff.

Following a greeting by Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, the five-star general said:

"When we reach the city of New York we know we have come home."

By arrangement, the airport reception was quiet. About 1,000 official greeters were on hand, headed by the mayor and army and navy officials. Police kept the public from the landing ceremonies.

A band played "The Sidewalks of New York" as MacArthur began his inspection of the honor guard. The band ended with the selection, "Old Soldiers Never Die!"

The bunting-draped reviewing stand was crowded with newsmen and photographers.

MacArthur, his voice hoarse, but appearing tired and fit, paused at the stand and waved to the press.

Then the general entered the open-topped lead car of a motorcade for an almost two-hour trip through city streets to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

One car carried the smiling Mrs. MacArthur, clutching 14 American beauty roses presented to her by Mrs. Impellitteri.

Each rose represented one year that the MacArthurs had been away from New York. They were married in the Municipal building here almost 14 years ago.

The motorcade moved through streets at an average speed of ten miles an hour.

Thousands lined the sidewalks to get a glimpse of, and cheer, the general.

Impromptu bands greeted the procession, including a life and drum corps made up of boys.

Chiang Kni-shek in an invasion of China.

"They have admitted, however, that they'll have to consider such action if Red China air force comes in strength into the fight."

Senators Maybank (D-SC) and Duff (R-PA) called on the chiefs of staff to speak up.

up a social life of sorts, and so on. Believe me, the modern mother gets no help from the modern grandmother. Grandmother goes to more than anybody else; is always studying or writing a speech and doesn't want the children around. They "bother" her. Why, she won't even let the children call her Grandmother, and she would throw a fit if one of them called her Granny. The other day my youngest asked me: "Mama, why is it that we haven't any Grandmother or Grandpa? All the other children at school have them." And I replied: "Why, Honey, Toto is your grandmother and Bobo is your grandfather." Well, it was news to him.

WORN-OUT YOUNG MA

Answer: Raising a child is like carrying an umbrella or making a fire. The onlookers always think they could do it better than the one who is doing it. But you are mistaken if you think that the young mothers of today are getting an undue amount of criticism. Most of us think they are doing a grand job; a far better one than their mothers did.

They're Better Taught

The modern young mother tries just as hard to be a good mother as all the generations of mothers who have gone before her, for there have been mighty few women who haven't been willing to work and sacrifice for their children. The mother of today has this advantage; she is better taught and can give more intelligent care to the rearing of her children.

No children have even had such scientific care given to their health, nor had their psychology so studied, and if we oldsters sometimes think that their mothers are bringing them up a little too much by the book and not enough by the heart, why they are erring on virtue's side.

What any correspondent says about Grandmother becoming as extinct as the dodo is, alas, also too true. The woman who won't let her grandchildren call her "Granny" because it dates her misses one of the sweetest relationships in life.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been married several years and have three fine children. The other day my wife told me about her having had love affairs with different men before we were married and the shock of finding out that she was not a good girl is driving me crazy. I can't get the thought out of my mind. What must I do? Don't tell me to forget it, for I can't.

H. P.

Answer: Of course you can't forget it. That kind of revelation burns itself into the soul. But if you can't forget it, perhaps you can find it in your heart to forgive your wife if she has gone straight since you were married.

Many wives have a worse thing to forgive their husbands than you have to forgive your wife, for whatever wrong your wife did was committed in the past before she knew you, whereas their husbands' sins against them are in the present. Also, often a woman who has been loose in her morals before marriage becomes a Puritan after marriage. She has found out that the primrose path had more thorns than roses, and that the only happiness for a woman is in being faithful to one man and in leading a clean and decent life.

But how cowardly the woman is place he takes me is to the movies. Would you say he is going with me? Would you advise me to keep going with him or quit? "It is. Answer: I would say that you are going out of your way to store up trouble for yourself. You certainly have taken up with a worthless man, and the sooner you drop him entirely and try to get yourself a nice beau, the better. If he has no respect for you now, he never will have.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a girl of 18 and go with a boy 26. He drinks, gambles, and goes with married women. He never keeps his dates with me. He doesn't have any respect for me and is always swearing. I have been going with him nine months and the only

KILLER'S PACE

BY JULIUS LONG

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY is told in the first person by the killer, Larry Stone, who is a member of the LaGrange gang. He is a cold, calculating man who is determined to avenge the death of his partner, LaGrange. He is a member of the LaGrange gang, and he is a cold, calculating man who is determined to avenge the death of his partner, LaGrange.

Imagine him lending LaGrange to a client, and I can imagine the rest of the gang desiring to avenge LaGrange's death at your hands.

OUTSIDE La Jolla Club was a nightmare in neon; inside it was about average for the mid-west. To the right as you entered was a long bar with a lot of neon and glass at the back and three nearly bald bartenders.

It was my first trip inside the place. I went over to the bar and ordered bourbon.

I was just giving the order when I noticed a couple entering. It was Larry Stone and Madam Sonya Sarcelia, all right, and though Stone was very pretty in a tux, it was Madam Sonya who had put on the war paint for the occasion.

Her jet-black hair was up in some kind of an elaborate hair-do, and only a snowy slim gal could have gotten away with the slinky gown she wore.

Stone escorted her to a table in a secluded alcove, and eyes popped when she let her jacket slip back over her chair. It looked as if she had put on the gown backwards.

The waiter had taken their order when a man in a tuxedo appeared from a draped doorway at the left and walked to the table. He was middle-aged, about 50, but his bushy, graying hair gave him a distinguished look. He was Al Nanabarro, the proprietor. Larry Stone rose and shook hands with a certain deference.

Lots of people treated Al Nanabarro with a certain deference. I have known few night club owners with bona fide gangster backgrounds, but I thought it probable that Nanabarro's past lived up to his reputation. Some months back there had been quite a stink about the strange death of a line girl, Frankie Martin, who had been Nanabarro's favorite. She had apparently died when she had driven his car off a bridge and into a river.

Nanabarro didn't remain long at the table. He excused himself and crossed to the bar. I observed him through the mirror. We had only a slight speaking acquaintance; I hoped he wouldn't recognize me with my back turned. His deep facial creases grew deeper, as he asked a barman:

"Louise hasn't come in yet?"

"No, Mr. Nanabarro. Shall I tell her you want to see her?"

"Never mind."

He crossed to the draped door beyond which must have been his office and vanished.

About 10, five girls walked in. Their clothes and make-up stamped them as show girls. They spoke cheerily to the barman and vanished through a doorway at the right.

After a while all five girls came back and climbed on bar stools and went through the business of being chummy with the customers. At a quarter after 10 a sixth girl walked in. She was as obviously a line girl as the others, but she had it on them by a good 50 miles. Moreover, she walked with a certain authority. This, I decided, would be Louise, the boss's girl friend.

LOUISE came back, eyed the remaining bar stools and selected one about five stools from me. There was a vacant stool on either side of her, and I moved to the one on her left.

"Hello, Louise."

Louise gave me the fish-eye. She was trying to make up her mind if she had ever known me. The nearest barman gave me a sour stare. Louise said:

"I don't believe I ever met you before, Mac."

"No. They told me the best-looking girl here was named Louise, so I knew you had to be Louise."

"They also tell you Louise is the boss's girl?"

"Sure. By the way, he was inquiring about you a little while ago. I think he had an idea you were late or something."

Louise looked frightened. Then she put on a smile.

The United Nations has estimated that world population in 1949 was 2,351,000,000 — and growing rapidly. Man has destroyed about a third of the earth's original forests.

A tobacco field may recover from hurricane damage in a year by producing a new crop, but it takes a coffee plantation five to seven years.

Sunday School LESSON

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
The story is well known of how Jacob and his great company went down to Egypt, and flourished under the power and patronage of his illustrious son. But it is a story that cannot be too well known. I realized this some years ago when a Baptist minister, who was an accomplished orator, came to address a large men's meeting over which I was presiding. His "address" that day consisted of a recitation without comment of the 11 chapters of Genesis, in the Authorized Version. For me it was a thrilling experience. I had never before realized how the amazing story is so amazingly told, the details and contrasts brought out with vividness and dramatic effect, the steadfastness under temptation, the fortitude under imprisonment and bitter disappointment, the uncorrupted character under power and virtual dictatorship, and through it all the very noble and very human Joseph averting himself by a very subtle trick upon the brethren, who had sold him into slavery. But trouble began for the people in a foreign land, when there arose a Pharaoh, who knew not Joseph. The racial and religious prejudice, unfortunately still rife in the world, even in our own supposedly enlightened, democratic, environment, soon wreaked its havoc upon the Jews. Great works of ancient times soon became the symbols of injustice and oppression. Forced to make bricks without straw, the remnants of those who had come to Egypt seeking food, and finding appetite, were cast into bondage, suffering cruelly. Later a man, foster-son of the palace, renounced his foster-mother, and his prospect of ease and power, and led them out of bondage toward freedom. But it was, as we know, by no means as simple as that. Hardships, discouragements, rebellious spirits, yearnings to turn back, wanderings in the wilderness, conflicts, marked the way until the freedom of Canaan was won. But it was a march from bondage to freedom. All is not bright and pleasant in that record, but what is bright and what shines with especial glory, is the conception of liberty enshrined in the ancient Jewish Scriptures. In a world in which everywhere slavery was prevalent, it is remarkable how the Jews designed laws and regulations to protect the community against slavery and the individual in his rights. One cannot go into this fully here, but one can point to the laws designed to prevent perdition, the protection of a debtor against becoming permanently in bondage to his creditor, and the Cities of Refuge as safety for those who had inadvertently injured another. The heritage of liberty that the world owes to the Jews is immense, but unfortunately the world has never fully appreciated it.

Nation, World in Tribute to Vandenberg

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 19.—An honor guard stood at the door of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg today as his home city and nation mourned him. U.S. leaders will be here tomorrow for funeral services for the Michigan Republican who helped establish the United Nations, championed an "Unpartisan" sign policy for this country. The services are set for 2 p. m. in the new chapel of the Park Memorial Church, which Vandenberg helped build. In Washington, as well as in Michigan, flags flew at half staff today. The 67-year-old senator, who died Wednesday night after a long illness. Vandenberg's casket was placed in a funeral home last night, and will be in the city for several days. The body will lie in state at the church tomorrow from 10 a. m. until the funeral. The funeral service will be conducted by Dr. Edward Archibald Thompson, pastor of the Park Memorial Church. Vandenberg gave the church $10,000—an award he received from a national magazine (Collier) for his contribution to world peace to build the new chapel. Burial will be at Oak Hill cemetery.

Commons Votes Down Churchill

London, April 20.—(AP)—An attempt by Winston Churchill to increase Britain's share in the Atlantic pact's top naval command was voted down 291-280 last night by Britain's house of commons. The Conservative leader assailed the government for accepting a point of view of an American admiral as supreme naval commander, appealed to the United States to give up the post. He suggested that Britain and the U. S. share the defense of the Atlantic on an equal footing. Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell replied that the Atlantic commander might have to call for reinforcements from the strong American naval concentrations in the Pacific in the event of an attack. "It might well be that an American supreme commander would more direct and speedy access to the American president than a British admiral sitting in Whitehall." Churchill tried to get the house to express lack of confidence in Shinwell by using a rear parliamentary procedure—a motion that Shinwell's salary of 10,000 pounds (14,000) be reduced 100 pounds (280). It was this motion that the house rejected by 11-vote margin. Britain and the other 11 Atlantic nations already have approved in principle the appointment of William M. Fechteler is generally regarded as the likely choice.

Our Boy goes to CHURCH

What a fine lad he is! How proud we are of him! And now he goes to Church and the Church School. There he will worship and learn to love the great and good God. He will hear the most "wonderful story ever told" of the love and goodness of God, as revealed in a human person. He will fellowship with other children who are learning to know and to serve God. This is a splendid picture. Now we wish that all the boys in the land would do as this fine chap does on the way that leads to life!

What are the other three boys who make up three-fourths of our boy population? Perhaps their parents were too busy doing "practical things" on Sunday morning when they could have been leading their children by the hand to Church School and Church. Boys go to church better if they are brought by their parents than if they are "sent by indifferent fathers and mothers." Our children will follow pretty much in our steps, and will take the same Sunday path that we follow.

Every child born in a Christian land has a right to the advantages of religion. If we fail to give them their rightful heritage of faith and love, we are failing them. There are the Gods which will abide when other things pass away. Let's give our children the best. Since they are minds and souls as well as bodies, they have a right to expect of us good food for their higher nature as well as food for their bodies. Let's live with them in reverence toward God and in goodwill toward all men. The Church is ours to use and we shall deny ourselves and our children the high and noble heritage of civilization?

YOU IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a trademark of the church. It is how that young and old alike are shaped with beauty and a stronger democracy. In the church the individual are molding religious character. Business today declares that the church alone can furnish leadership to the world. The church should go to the school of our children as leaders. "You in the Church and the Church in you"—form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.
